

SCOUT INBOARD BROCHURE

21' Scout Inboard shown with optional canvas top with rigid frame and custom vinyl wrap

The Wooldridge Scout is the little brother to our flagship Canyon model, sharing its proven whitewater DNA in a more compact, agile package. Its distinctive broad-bow design delivers exceptional lift, precise handling, and confidence in challenging whitewater, perfect for fast canyon runs and technical river work.

Built on a robust support structure, the Scout is engineered to endure punishing conditions while providing the long-lasting durability Wooldridge is known for.

Available in 19', 21', and 23' lengths (with custom sizes available), the Scout comes standard with either a walk-through, center 3-piece windshield or an open center console positioned in front of the inboard engine. One feature unique to the Scout is its taller standing windshield, designed to improve visibility when seated at the very front of the hull, ideal for reading water as it rapidly approaches.

For greater stability, deck space, and load-hauling capacity, the Scout can be built with the wide body option, which adds a full foot to both the bottom width and the beam.

The Scout can also be tailored with options such as an enclosed cabin, raised rear Idaho deck, or stick-steer controls. Additional standard features include full-length welded side trays with marine carpet for rod and tackle storage, plus stand-up gunnels with toe kicks for enhanced comfort and stability while fishing.

Available with a variety of engine and jet combinations, including the standard KEM 5.3DI paired with the Hamilton 214 pump and turbo impeller.

Like all Wooldridge boats, the Scout carries a lifetime limited hull warranty for the original owner.
